

Join AluminumNation

The aluminum industry is a vital part of the American manufacturing sector and a leader in the national sustainability movement. Public policy issues facing the industry have grown more complex and integrated, making it ever more important that key decision-makers hear our collective voice to best understand the economic and environmental benefits of aluminum. To do that, we need your help.

What Is AluminumNation?

AluminumNation is an online advocacy network that helps play a significant role in protecting the aluminum industry's high quality, advanced manufacturing jobs through a unified collective voice.

Who Is AluminumNation?

AluminumNation includes aluminum industry leaders, employees and their family members, retirees, students, suppliers to the industry, and those who are interested in supporting the production and use of this economically and environmentally vital metal. Members of AluminumNation are the face of the aluminum industry.

How Does AluminumNation Work?

Members of AluminumNation will receive periodic email alerts with up-to-date information on issues important to the aluminum industry. Additionally, members will have the opportunity to engage directly with policymakers, ensuring a healthy, competitive industry and continued job creation here at home.

Become an AluminumNation Advocate

Sign up: Join AluminumNation on www.aluminum.org/joinaluminumnation with your name, company, email and zip code. Your zip code allows us to find your Federal Representative.

Encourage others: Spread the word about AluminumNation. Ask others within your company, your plant managers and your professional network. The more advocates, the louder our collective voice.

For more information, contact Matt Meenan (mmeenan@aluminum.org) or Stacie Manger (smanger@aluminum.org)